

I recently received email from the Indiana State Attorney General, Stephen Carter, stating...

"The FCC is considering preempting state Telephone Privacy laws in favor of adopting one lower national standard."

I want to let you know that I do NOT want lower standards than those that Indiana has set. It is a blessing with the new Indiana law not to not have our family mealtime and busy evenings interrupted by phone solicitations. Before the Indiana law it was nearly every evening or sometimes twice a night that we had these unwanted calls.

Sincerely,

Andy Hughes
